On March 11, 2014, all magnet students were treated to a special presentation by a Homeland Security undercover agent (identity protected in these pictures) who spent nearly 30 years working uncovering international money laundering syndicates. This presentation was part of the Magnet Justice Careers annual academic unit.
The agent left a comical drawing for the students who he described as intelligent and highly motivated. We thank the agent for his presentation and money laundering demonstration for which he came in from out of town on his own time to present.
